

Enter the wonderful world of Jay N. "Ding" Darling, Pulitzer Prize-winning cartoonist, author, world traveler, confidant of Presidents, and pioneering conservationist.

For generations Americans woke to his opinions on the front page of their morning newspapers. Ding never pulled punches in his forceful cartoons on subjects ranging from the joys and consternations of the Ordinary Citizen to questions that would determine the fate of the world and the survival of humankind.

These cartoons, compiled and commented on by Ding's grandson, are as relevant today as ever.
